FYI, see below. Any reactions? We could propose that we proceed on August 11 as planned, in order to discuss some of our questions about GE's modeling work and its calculation of 920 kg. We could postpone the meeting as Adler proposes -- in which case I need to know which of these dates works best for the majority of our folks.

Understand that you are out of the office, so I am doing this via e-mail. We were wondering about next week's meeting. As you will recall, part of the idea was to schedule it after we had seen the draft Peer Review report, on the assumption that the report would at the very least direct us at issues that we need to focus on. Since the report will now not be available until later in the week, we thought that we ought to push the meeting off a little bit. John Haggard reports that the most recent technical meeting went well, but that there are a number of issues that the technical teams can continue to work on, and our folks are generally available to continue to do so (and could even meet on the 11th in lieu of our other meeting).

Assuming that makes sense, here are potential dates over the week of the 23rd for a rescheduled Klee/Mugdan meeting:

August 23 -- pm
August 24 -- pm
August 26 -- any time
August 27 -- any time

If no other alternatives work, we can also do August 18th. Let me know what you think. I am in the office if you want to talk.
